MOTHER, GIRL AND MAN MISSING AFTER BLAST WRECKS HOME

suffocating from smoke, while the mother, Mrs. Lillian Boyd, was burned to death in bed.

In Norfolk the terrific double explosion of a huge still destroyed the farm house owned by the Andrew Jones estate by Harry Davis of Framingham.

Charles Gordon, claiming a former address at No. 1 Cross street, Boston, and on March 16 of that year, Brown, forty, and her twelve-year-old daughter, Evelyn, believed to have been in the house, are unaccounted for, and the ruins are being searched for their bodies.

Wreckage of two 800-gallon stills that had exploded were found in the big barn adjoining, also wrecked and partly burned, were found alcohol, tin, liquor barrels, whiskey, labels, bottles and stoppers.

Little Evelyn, who was in school yesterday, did not attend today.

The Morris Highland fire ruins themselves were black and smoky too many of the heroic sacrifices made by Isabel Boyd in a vain attempt to save her mother. The daughter's body was found in the passageway between her own room and her mother's.

When she opened her bedroom door she apparently was met with a dense cloud of smoke. She was able to climb through it only a few yards when she fell overcome.

The blast, starting on the second floor and burning rapidly through the roof, had gained such headway when firemen arrived that it was thought impossible to enter the house, but half a dozen firemen and policemen responded to a call for volunteers to go for the trapped women.

Protected with wet blankets over their heads, the volunteers searched the lower floors and then rushed their lives on the second floor where they found Mrs. Boyd's body first and then the body of her daughter.

Miss Boyd's body was only slightly burned and hope was held out until, at Melrose Hospital, Dr. McLaughlin pronounced death as having been caused almost instantly by the first inhalation of smoke.

A dog, "Laddie" was sleeping on the first floor and escaped the flames. John Boyd, husband of Mrs. Boyd, was away, visiting a married daughter in Watertown.

Miss Boyd was graduated from Melrose High School in the class of 1901 and was employed as a secretary in a Boston business house.

ML'AIN, VETERAN STATE EMPLOYEE, PASSES ON

QUEEN MOTHER OF ENGLAND DEAD

passed away peacefully at 835 today. The King and Queen and members of the royal family were present.

Official notifications that the British Empire is in mourning for a period of three months are now being issued.

The Queen Mother will probably be buried by the side of her husband, the late King Edward.

King George and Queen Mary had been constantly with the dying Queen since morning. The Princess Royal arrived from London during the early afternoon. Queen Maund of Norway, third daughter of Alexander, had been staying at her Edinburgh residence and was hastily summoned to the sick room during the early afternoon.

The Prince of Wales and the Duke and Duchess of York, having to the bedside of their dying grandmother, were too late to see her before she had passed away. Their train was late and they did not arrive at Walferton, the station for Edinburgh, until 8:45. The station master informed them of their grandmother's death.

Though the death of the Queen mother had been expected, nevertheless the British public is greatly saddened for Queen Alexandra had endeared herself to the people, and there had been no greater royal favorite than kindly Queen "Alex."

CHILD OF KING CHRISTIAN.

Queen Alexandra was born in Copenhagen, December 1, 1844, the daughter of King Christian of Denmark, and was the eldest sister of that tragic figure, the Empress Marie Feodorovna of Russia, mother of the late murdered Czar Nicholas.

Alexandra arrived in England in 1863 and on March 10 of that year was married to St. George's Chapel, Windsor, to the Prince of Wales, afterward King Edward VII.

As the Archbishop of Canterbury began to read the solemn passages of the marriage service a gasp went up a howling, almost drowning out the words of the nuptial service.

The younger was Queen Victoria's grandson, and became Kaiser Wilhelm II of Germany.

Alexandra's long life was not without its trials and sorrows. Of King Edward's unconventional life as Prince of Wales, all people now have middle life remember. Then she was for 24 years under the thumb of her mother-in-law, Queen Victoria, remembered chiefly as a sour and unattractive old woman. Victoria died until 1901, and so it was not until Alexandra's coronation the next year that she could claim her right the social precedence accorded to the King's Consort.

Her greatest domestic bereavement was the death of her son, the Duke of Clarence, in 1902. Had he lived Clarence would be reigning today in place of King George, who was the second son of Edward and Alexandra.

Edwards' Wedding Upset Expected German Romance

Munich, Bavaria, Nov. 20 (A.P.)—News of the illness of Dowager Queen Alexandra brought sorrow to this little Rhineland city, since it was here, in the Speyer cathedral, that the first met her future husband, the Prince of Wales, who later became King Edward VII.

Their meeting was on September 14, 1861, when Princess Alex, as all her childhood friends called her, was seventeen years old—a beautiful, tall and slender light-haired girl. She was dressed in crimson and wore a quaint bonnet. The Prince of Wales, who had only recently returned from a visit to the United States and Canada, was a slender chap, with sideburns, a small mustache and a goatee.

The prince and princess met as tourists in the ancient Cathedral. The following day they spent at Heidelberg, and a year later their engagement was announced. At the time she was regarded as the only non-German princess eligible for the hand of the heir apparent to the British throne.

The marriage of the couple at Speyer has been considered as having had its effect upon European history during the half century following it. The hatred of the Danish royal household for the Hohenzollerns Engine 3317 of the New Haven hors du combat after plunging into a switch engine in the first street yards, South Boston. Some eighty-four freight cars were being hauled by the 3317 and the impact spun the switcher around like a top. The switcher crew were said to be on the ground inspecting her at the time.

Two large freight locomotives of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad were in collision early today, at the South Boston end, near the first street yards. Both the locomotives were derailed and about twenty-five feet of track ripped up.

According to early reports of an investigation being carried out by the train dispatcher's office, a switch engine with twenty-five cars attached was standing at the switcher preparing to enter the freight yards, when Engine No. 3317, coming in from Needville with thirty-four freight cars, ploughed through the rear end of the switcher.

The Needville train cut the switch engine free from her lead and the impact turned the switch engine completely around.

The crew of the switch engine were not at their posts when the accident happened but were inspecting the forward part of the engine and narrowly escaped being killed when the engine was turned around.

rotted when the marriage contract was put up to him.

Now Miss Whitaker is forty-five years old and she says she is just recovering from the shock of discovering that he has married the former Miss Madge Hovey of Albany, N. Y., the ceremony being performed in Worcester.

For a widower and a man of half a hundred years and more, Holmes was very shy, the stenographer said, and he had a variety of broad reasons every time the star was suggested as a natural sequel to the engagement ring she says he gave her.

One reason for postponing marriage was that he wished to wait until his daughter was out of school. Again, business was too poor.

11,000,000 for London Birth Control? Go Slowly
The Nation Is Richer
Mitchell for Congress

By Arthur Brisbane

ORD ASHFIELD, manager of London's subway, predicts a population of eleven million in 1950.

If so, London's population will be a long way behind that of New York. Lord Ashfield, who has had good training—has once managed Detroit's electric railways—says great cities must look to underground railways for traffic relief.

THAT WILL help for a while only. Ashfield forgets the flying machine, destined to wipe out congestion, in time. Cities, like the dinosaurs, will grow to huge size, then vanish from the earth. Kindly remember this prediction. It just came back here in 1930 years.

WORKERS WILL live together in roomy colonies on hill tops, mountain tops, or by the seashore, and fly to work in single suit factory cities of glass and steel from 100 to 500 miles away.

CHILDREN ARE living will see the beginning of that. But don't set your city corner lot, yet.

M. M. NICOL, JR., New York State Commissioner of Health, denounces the waste of women's lives every year in child birth. That complaint is just. A nation that spends money on machine warfare but neglects the birth of pigs and calves ought to be interested in human mothers also.

BUT THERE MIGHT be harm in too much encouragement of birth control, a remedy suggested by Dr. Nicol. It is preposterous that any woman should be compelled to have children against her will; brutally cruel to withhold from poor, overworked mothers birth control knowledge that every prosperous woman gets from her physician, as a matter of course.

HOWEVER, This important thing in the creation of children is affection, not money. A child's start in life depends, not on the father's bank account, but on the mother's love and respect for her children's father. A man sincerely devoted to his wife gives his children the right start. If he gives them health and character, without money.

AS TO NUMBERS you never can tell. Alexander the Great was a die and only Caruso followed eighteen brothers and sisters.

Nature is wiser than birth control or eugenics. The mother that wants children has the best children. Eugenists will reply "yes, therefore it is only common sense to let the others know how they may avoid having them."

THAT THERE IS no inflation of any kind in the commercial field. "There is absolutely no reason for curtailing credit there." The stock market has continued on page 12, column 3.

CASE GOES OVER TILL MONDAY

Sudden Postponement Follows Conference Held Today by Rival Counsel and Judge

White Plains, N. Y., Nov. 20.—The Rhinelander annulment trial, scheduled for resumption today, was adjourned until Monday to give counsel for Leonard Kip Rhinelander, the plaintiff, opportunity to make necessary investigations into the contents of one of the "mystery" letters that caused sudden adjournment of the case yesterday.

Although the case had been adjourned yesterday under circumstances that gave rise to rumors it would be withdrawn, the principals (Continued on Page 8, Column 1.)

THOUSANDS IN GEMS FOUND ON SUSPECTS

With several thousand dollars worth of jewels in their possession, according to the police, four men were trailed to a room in a South End hotel today and taken in custody as suspicious persons.

Two hours after the men were arrested, it was discovered that the Harriett Jewelry Company on Winter street had been looted of $1,000 worth of emblems and pins. All four men had a card of the store in their possession.

Believing they may be involved in recent jewel robberies, police compared their finger prints with records on file at headquarters.

The four men were seen acting suspiciously by Patrolman Joseph Lawrence and William Gault of East Dedham street station, who followed them to a Washington street hotel. The men went to a room and the policemen surprised them there. The jewelry was both upon the persons of the men and in various places in the room, according to the police.

Sims Balks at Being Nation's Big Scold

With all his reputation as a critic of naval policies, even when he was on active duty, Rear Admiral William S. Sims, recently a defense witness in the Mitchell court-martial, emphatically does not want to be known as "a national scold."

That's what he said today when he arrived in Boston to lecture on "The Principles of Command in Emergency," at the Engineering-Economic Foundation, No. 3 Joy street. He said:

"I have just attended two important meetings and have told you country about all I know. If I say any more for publication just now the people will think I'm a national scold."

Mayor Curley was fifty-one years old today.

Mrs. Curley presented the mayor with a huge basket of fifty-one American beauty roses. The mayor's personal office force gave him a beautiful calkkin traveling bag, the presentation speech being made by City Counselor Casey.

Flowers, books, birthday cards, telegrams from all over the world were piled high on his desk and a public reception was held during the noon hour.

Joshua Jones, editor of the City Record, read a poem of his own composition entitled, "Birthday."

A birthday party will be held at the Curley home in the Jamaica way tonight with only members of the family present.

FIRE HALTS B. C. STUDIES

The entire student body at Boston College quit classes this afternoon when a fire started on the roof of the new library building. After the Newton Fire Department arrived it was but a matter of minutes before the blaze was out. A barrel of boiling tar overturned and caused the fire which spread rapidly. The damage was slight.

YOUTH GETS 5 YEARS FOR HOLDUP IN CAFE
Five years and a day in Concord was the sentence imposed on William Backofsky, seventeen, of South Boston for the holdup of a cab driver in a Lechmere square lunch room, when he pleaded guilty to Judge George Flynn in Superior Court, at East Cambridge.

The case of his three companions who also pleaded guilty were placed on file, owing to their ages, but as the four were sentenced to the reformatory in Suffolk Superior Court no additional term was given the three for the Cambridge holdup.

FULLER TO PICK MAN TO JAIL 'MISTERS'

Angered over the failure of county prosecuting officers to jail city and town officials guilty of misappropriating public funds, Governor Fuller today personally took charge of the situation.

"We're going to have some action," declared the Governor. "I contemplate appointing some such man as Robert T. Rushnell, assistant district attorney of Essex County, as a special assistant Attorney-General whose special duty it will be to put these city and town officials who violate the laws behind the bars."

"Why haven't they been prosecuted," the Governor asked. "I'll tell you why, he replied. "They belong to a preferred class in their communities, a class which works to divide in all local affairs. If any effort is made to prosecute them their friends jump to their assistance, crying, 'Don't touch our crowd or you'll get into trouble!'"

The Governor paid a tribute to Theodore N. Waddell, chief of the State division of accounts, the official whose duty it is to audit city and town accounts. He referred to a "little black book" in Waddell's office which tells the story of the defalcations.

The book gives all data on discrepancies discovered since 1915 when the law was enacted authorizing state authorities to audit city and town books.

CAPT. FOLEY IS CLEARED OF 'FIXING'

Washington, Nov. 20 (A.P.)—Captain Paul Foley was exonerated today by the Rhode Island Naval Court of Inquiry of Mrs. Margaret Jones Lansdowne's charge that he sought to sway her testimony.

Just as the decision was being handed down, Judge Advocate Leach received formally the protest of counsel for Mrs. Lansdowne, asking dismissal of the court because it had barred her attorneys from taking part in the inquiry. The protest was denied.

had been filed with Secretary War, and forwarded by him to Major Leonard.

The court held that Captain Foley, its former Judge Advocate, was not guilty either of seeking to cause false testimony to be offered before the court or of seeking by "improper means to influence" the widow of the Rhode Island's commander.

With the Lansdowne-Foley incident out of its way, the court continued its general inquiry into the causes of the wreck of the Shenandoah.

It first questioned Captain Charles P. Clark of the Army Air Service, who admitted that while he had testified before the Mitchell court martial that he was qualified as a naval ship pilot, he never piloted such a ship. He had taken a course at Lakehurst, he added.

"Are you an expert on right ship pilot?" he was asked.

"No."

MRS. RANTOUL SILENT ABOUT LEGACY

When and how, quite different from the woman who testified of "heavenly love" in the Rantoul divorce proceedings twelve years ago, Mrs. John B. Rantoul today refused to either affirm or deny that she has come into $125,000 of the fortune of Charles Chapin "Clippin" Rantoul, for whom she confessed "divine" affection.

Mrs. Rantoul received a legacy of that amount under the will of James M. Codman, Brookline attorney and chairman.

Hoover Puts Curb on Radio Broadcasting

Washington, Nov. 20 (A.P.)—Except in unusual instances, no more licenses for operation of radio broadcasting stations will be issued by the Department of Commerce.

As a result of recommendations by the National Radio Conference this action was taken by Secretary Hoover. In some cases the department has agreed to license new stations where considerable investments were made on this assurance.

COUSIN TELLS OF OLYMPIA'S ROMANCE

Leitchfield, Ct., Nov. 20—Olympia Marci heard her cousin and aunt, Molly Lombardi, testify against her today in Olympia's second trial for the slaying of John Nagano, claimed to be the father of her child.

Molly, who also is a relative of the slain man, testified to frequent visits of Nagano to the store where she and Olympia worked and of several occasions when Olympia went out with him.

Mrs. Lombardi told of one instance when Olympia, leaving her counter without a word of good bye, left the store in company with Nagano.

The next morning, she testified, Olympia told her she had been out automobile riding with Nagano and did not get to her home until after 11 o'clock.

Under cross-examination, Mrs. Lombardi could not say whether this incident happened before or after the Webster street bridge meeting.

HOME-BUILDING FAKE EXPOSED BY LAWYER

Barred by the city laws from peddling fake securities, a gang of former stock salesmen, operating in Boston, have switched to the real estate "racket" and are making a cleanup posing as home builders, according to Attorney Amos M. Molan, No. 4 Beacon street.

A member of the band, posing as a citizen desirous of building a house, selects some town adjacent to Boston and purchases land, 6000 to 100, according to Mr. Molan, several of whose clients were victims.

The pseudo homebuilder then signs contracts with a "lumber man," a builder and a contractor, all of whom agree to accept payment when the house is erected and a mortgage is obtained.

It is at this point, declares Mr. Molan, that the swindler reaps his harvest. With either drug and house contracts with the exemption of the interior, the bogus owner secures a collateral building loan from a small bank in the town—usually about $1,000—and suddenly disappears.

SHOOT MAN FOR DEER; VICTIM IS NEAR DEATH

Old Town, Me., Nov. 20 (A.P.)—Joseph Babik, night superintendent at the Mills of the Penobscot Chemical Fibre Company, here, was shot and probably fatally wounded today by a bullet from the rifle of another hunter, Frank Dority, slain of this town.

The bullet first passed through the butt of the victim's gun before lodging in his body. Dority says he mistook Babik for a deer.

Asked today at her home, a large rambling English-type bungalow at No. 13 Rivers street, Jamaica Plain, if this was part of Rantoul's fortune, she said:

"I don't want to answer that. Please don't rake up old scores. You will understand why I don't care to make a statement."

Mr. Codman himself was chief beneficiary of Rantoul's fortune, estimated at $125,000, when the latter died in 1914. For Rantoul, Mrs. Rantoul had confessed "a heavenly and disinterested love" while testifying in East Cambridge Court during the trial of her divorce suit instituted in 1912 and carried through many years.

Rantoul had been a college classmate of Mrs. Rantoul's husband, Edward L. Rantoul, son of an old Salem family. He had been Rantoul's closest friend. During the long litigation which attracted considerable attention, James M. Codman had been an intimate personal friend and adviser of Mrs. Rantoul and "Clippin" Rantoul.

Codman died at his Brookline home October 8. His names Philip Stockton of Back Bay and Manchester as executor. Mr. Stockton is also a beneficiary of the will, receiving $50,000 in cash, the real estate and shares of the various clubs in which the testator was interested.

To his father, a faithful employee for twenty-five years, C. Frederick Rantoul, is left $10,000 in cash and wearing apparel.

A brother, Richard Codman, is also named as a beneficiary, receiving $100,000. The residue of the estate is left to a sister, Mrs. Cora Codman Ely of No. 139 Warren street, Brookline, to divide the bequest among herself and children.

YOUTH DENIES LOVING LOST SMITH GIRL

Northampton, Nov. 20.—On an entirely new angle detectives and searchers were today in their hunt for Alice M. Corbett, 19-year-old Smith College junior, missing for a week, and the chase came through admissions made by Thomas F. Sterling, her alleged sweetheart.

Sterling, a senior at Amherst College, eight miles away, changed his story today and claimed that he is not the sweetheart of the vanished girl, but only a friend.

Of a more serious nature were other statements by the Amherst man, and State Detective Daly, in charge of the hunt, hastily summoned the youth to Northampton today for a new grilling.

STERLING'S STATEMENT.

Also did Detective Daly accept the offer of a police dog, made by the chief of police of Putnam, Ct., and the chief arrived today with a Doberman Pinscher, a German dog of the original police breed.

In the belief that Alice may have gone to brood on the shores of Paradise Pond, where Sterling now admits to the police he engaged with her in "speaking parties," the dog will be set loose in the vicinity of the pond to see if he can pick up her trail.

The disappearance of the girl admittedly had a more serious aspect today, as a result of Sterling's statements, made first to a representative of the Boston Evening American, and it is thought that she may be in some faraway hospital.

NO SEARCHERS OUT.

"I am not the girl's fiancee," Sterling said in one part of his statement, although previously he had declared repeatedly that they were engaged.

"I am not her sweetheart and I am not engaged to her. The stories that I was engaged to her are not so."

"I did receive 218 letters from her, but I also received letters from many other girls at Smith College and I have a long list of girls at the college with whom I have kept dates."

This was the lesser part of the Amherst senior's statements, and State Detective Daly showed no hesitancy in hitting his belief that Sterling has not told all he knows about the strange case.

One hundred searchers were on the hunt today, including Boy Scouts headed by Gordon Wilco, treasurer of the Hampshire Trust Company, who received a check from Mr. and Mrs. Corbett, parents of Alice, donating $100 to the Scouts for their tireless work in attempting to find the girl. The Corbetts are expected back in Northampton tonight from Utica, N. Y.

after Captain Richard Holt had found a woman's dress, coat and hat on the wharf. Investigation revealed the woman, clad only in her underclothing, sitting on the edge of the pier.

LONGS FOR MOTHER

Above, Robert Bousfield, one of six children of Mrs. Magdalene Bousfield of Wilmington (inset), who has vanished.

6 FEAR MOTHER HEARS BRIGHT LIGHTS' CALL

Mystery surrounds the disappearance of Mrs. Magdalene E. Bousfield, mother of six children, who left her home on Aldrich road, Wilmington, November 7, after telling her son Robert that she "wanted a change and was going away, possibly to New York." Since that time her husband has received no word of her.

The missing woman is 35 years old, 5 feet, 4 inches tall, has dark wavy hair and blue eyes, and has a deep scar on the knuckle of her right forefinger. She wore a light tan woolen dress, black shoes and stockings, a long, light brown coat and a brown hat with gilt trimmings. She carried a tan leather traveling bag which she packed hastily after her husband left for work.

Through an investigation by the Wolf Secret Service Bureau, it was revealed that on the day she vanished Mrs. Bousfield drew $50 from a Western bank.

While her husband is searching for her in nearby cities and communicating with friends and relatives in distant cities, Florence, the eight-year-old daughter, keeps house and cares for the baby, Virginia. A search of hospitals and lodging houses in Greater Boston has failed to divulge information concerning her.

KEEP 'EM COMIN' WEATHER MAN!

Clear, sunny weather, with hardly a trace of wind and a moderate temperature ranging between 45 and 50 degrees will greet Boston tomorrow.

The entire sweep of the country from Seattle to Boston is a continuous area of high pressure with no rain of any degree marring the map. Southern Atlantic States report a very slight rain, but conditions indicate this being swept seaward.

The mercury in Boston rose several degrees during the night, and this morning stood at 44 degrees. Concord, N. H., and Greenville, Me., with 25 degrees, were the lowest temperatures reported for New England.

GIRLS BATTLE STORE SLEUTHS IN STREET
Women Detectives Land Pair of Alleged Shoplifters After a Struggle Before Crowd
With an excited crowd milling in Washington street, two women detectives battled with two alleged shoplifters today, finally subduing them.

On the way to police headquarters one of the pair began another battle with her cap and the struggle raged almost into Pemberton square. Then a third tussle broke out when the same girl, in headquarters, attempted to swallow a piece of paper that bore her name and address. The captured pair, who claim to be show girls, are Mrs. Lorraine Albin, 29, and Louise Olson, 31, both of Norway street. They are charged with stealing $4 in women's wearing apparel from department stores. For half the day, according to police, the two women operatives of the Store Mutual Protective Association trailed the young women before coming to arrest them. When the first struggle came the Olson girl took to her French heels in a race for safety. She was quickly captured in a doorway. Meanwhile, Lorraine and her cap were struggling before a rapidly gathering crowd of Washington street shoppers. At police headquarters both girls at first refused to give their names. The Lorraine suddenly drew a piece of paper from her handbag and thrust it into her mouth. Believing she was attempting to swallow it, officers held her by the throat, preventing her swallowing. The paper was extracted and found to bear her name and address.

NEGRO GARMAN READS LAW AS HE LOAF
"L" Conductors Again Refuse to Give Moore Instruction in Duties
Determined to hold fast against what they allege to be an attempt to split their union, conductors at the Boston street car barn of the Boston Elevated again refused to a man today to give instruction to Charles M. Moore, negro novice, training to be a conductor.

DANA CITES LAW
Moore, who lives at No. 3 Webster street, Charlestown, was assigned to Boston street as a student conductor and the conductors charge that General Manager Edward Dana is attempting to mark a "color line" in an attempt to divide the union. Every conductor at the Boston street barn ignored the novice today, but he took the rebuffs calmly and when all refused to take him on instruction trips, he sat himself quietly down in the lobby and read a law book. Manager Dana stated today that he was surprised at the action of the conductors, who are members of the Boston Car Barn and indicated that he did not feel that the other employees were giving the new man a fair opportunity to learn the duties of the position. The Urban Association of Boston, in a letter to the trustees charged that the colored people of Boston were being discriminated against by the employment of Dana. The association, at that time, the attention of the trustees to the fact that the colored employees were being discriminated against by the employment of Dana. Gifford of New Bedford, resulted in Inspector Hagberg overruling the vessel and bringing the man back to Boston.

SHIP CHARTERED FOR GRAIN CARGO FROM HUB
A further indication that shipments of grain from Boston will be numerous is evidenced in the charter of the British steamship company for a trip to Italy and Sicily America with a cargo of 200,000 bushels of corn. The Amstel was in today from Smyrna. American and Canadian ships with 2,000 bales of Egyptian cotton and other cargo. White Boston and other Atlantic coast grain elevators have been idle those in Montreal have been rushed with shipments of rice. The Maritime Association of the Chamber of Commerce started a hunt for this sort of business for Boston, with the result two cargoes were secured this week and more promised.

NEW HAVEN BUS LINES FOUGHT AS "OUTLAW"
Hartford, Ct., Nov. 20 (A.P.)—The New England Transportation Company, a subsidiary of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, was outlawed as an "outlaw" by Arthur L. The proposed lines would cover 440 miles of highway. Mr. Shipman asserted the Transportation Company had no standing before the commission, since by the charter of the New Haven road, its admitted competitor, neither its stock nor securities can be held legally by that company.

MYSTERY LOVE KIP TRIAL UNTIL MONDAY

There was a bit of excitement early today when it was said young Rhineland had disappeared from the jail. He was not, however, several minutes before court came in.

In addressing the court while calling for a postponement of the case, Attorney Mills said:

"Yesterday afternoon an emergency arose of which I had not the slightest knowledge. Mr. Jacobs, my associate counsel, and I took every possible means to secure the status of the case before the trial started, but Mr. Davis, during conference, gave me some information that gave me a new situation and I felt it was my duty as leading counsel to make some investigation to see what action we should take in this emergency."

"Mr. Jacobs and I investigated this new situation, but have not been able to complete our work. In view of this condition I asked for an adjournment until Monday."

LETTERS ARE REVEALED.
It was understood that Mr. Davis had revealed the contents of at least two of the letters which have made their appearance in the case under unusual conditions, but which have not been made public.

The two letters are among those three hundred which Leonard sent to Alice. Mr. Davis has threatened to make them public, an act which he has said would "wreck" young Rhineland. The contents of these letters are admittedly of a sensational character.

Just before proceedings were resumed today one of Rhineland's lawyers was quoted as declaring emphatically that the trial would continue to the end.

The sudden interruption of proceedings yesterday, alone on the heels of the introduction of love letters which none but young Rhineland was allowed to read, gave rise to the belief that the case would terminate abruptly.

These "mystery" letters were the last resources of his wife, her final reinforcements to force him to stand by her, and she had instructed her counsel to withhold them until all hope of victory for her had faded, then to hurl them like bombshells at the man who cringed there under her fire.

Their introduction provided the most dramatic incident of the sensational trial, and brought about the utter rout of young Rhineland. The incident which caused adjournment an hour and a quarter earlier than the scheduled time was

FIREMEN IN AERIAL STUNT TO SAVE FLAG

Hundreds gathered in the vicinity of Essex and Washington streets today when ladder 17 dashed to the corner and threw extension ladders up against the theatre building. There was no fire, however, the crew of the ladder truck having been called to "rescue" the flag atop the building. The flag had become furled tightly around the flagpole, rioting a ladder to the roof, they stood it against the pole and a ladderman quickly disengaged the flag.

A letter written by Kip to his quad-room wife immediately after their holiday at the Marie Antoinette Hotel, four years ago, confronting the married youth, Davis sought to force him to describe the methods he used to win the girl, when Justice Murchauson from the bench suggested:

"Not yet, I want him to read this letter and then I'll ask for a recess."

Nervously, Rhineland's fingers fluttered through the six page letter and his face went wan. When he finished, he handed it back, stating that he had written it.

Then Davis gave it to Mr. Mills to read. The white-haired barrister scanned it while and in a whisper asked permission to read another letter which Davis had let the witness, and no one else, see, three days ago.

Grifely, the bank lawyer for Mrs. Rhineland, drew the desired document from a brief case and handed it to his opponent. Again, the silver-crowned head of the Rhineland attorney bent down and his lips moved as he silently read. Then he handed it back, without word, and recess was ordered.

Neither letter was offered in evidence and only the area of the Rhinelanders' and their attorneys have rested on them, but the two letters are known to contain the most objectionable passages in the entire mass of correspondence between the couple.

Whether either letter referred to her color was not revealed, but it was obvious that Mrs. Rhineland's lawyers were convinced that the two documents clinched the case for their client.

Newport, N.H., Nov. 20 (A.P.)—A shipment of champagne designed to grace Thanksgiving tables fell into the hands of the United States customs patrol today after an automobile race on the Newport-Johnsbury road, in which the customs men's car proved the faster. The seized booze was valued at $4,500.

LOST BALLOON FOUND AT SEA

After a series of hectic experiences which began when it was "stolen" from the roof of a Harvard square garage, the big advertising balloon, which has been the object of investigations by Harvard, Cambridge and "secret society" officials, has been recovered and will fly over the garage on Saturday, when Harvard meets Yale on the gridiron.

The balloon, purchased for just this occasion as an advertising stunt, was stolen on November 12.

The gas bag was recovered twenty-four miles off Thatcher's Island, a short time after it was reported stolen, it is now revealed. Believing that he saw a man clinging to it while it was shipped along the water, Captain Peter Gulepp of the fishing smack Ingomar, chased the elusive balloon for two hours in a power boat. He finally captured it, let the gas out and took it ashore.

FASSANO'S JOB UP TO WILSON

Anthony Fassano, of the Field Corner police station, under suspicion for falling asleep in a church which he entered while on duty to pray for the recovery of his young son, ended his appeal today when Commissioner Wilson, with testimony from the family physician, Charles E. Mackey, today.

Commissioner Wilson took the appeal under advisement.

Dr. Mackey told the commissioner that he had been called to attend the child on October 17, at which time he believed the boy's case suffering from bronchitis. On November 1 the child had pneumonia. The condition cleared up quickly, however, and on November 5 this patient had practically recovered.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Old-Time Reception Introduces Miss Ruth Baylies to Hub Smart Set

MISS HELEN MERRIAM, Miss Lydia Follett and Miss Hope Patterson, three lovely buds who aided Sweet Charity by donning gorgeous frocks and wraps at the Florence Crittenton League fashion show.

MISS RUTH BAYLIES, prominent debutante of the present season, was introduced to Boston's world of fashion at a state evening reception revived gloriously from a generation past and staged by her parents, the Walter C. Baylies, at their Commonwealth avenue mansion. Scores of guests came to do honor to the bud, to sup and to dance.

THE BUD AND her mother received in a drawing room literally walled in flowers—all these fragrant gorgeous blooms sent to Miss Baylies in token of the day of presentation. They made a handsomely contoured picture, mother and daughter, one in rich blue, the other in white.

MRS. BAYLIES WAS in royal blue sequined and glittering with touches of gold, and Miss Baylies was in tulle, a frock of delicate beauty, garlanded with flowers, done in rare bead work with silver here and there. Rhinestone slippers and silver stockings added their smart finish to a creation essentially bodiceless.

WORD OF MRS. MURIEL WINTHROP BOARDMAN'S engagement to Harold C. Sams, Newporter and New Yorker, is an interesting topic for Boston's innermost circles where—brilliantly but briefly—this beautiful Gotham girl shone as the wife of Richard deLille Boardman.

A MURIEL WINTHROP daughter of the highly placed Egerton L. Winthrop, Jr., of New York, after two or three seasons "out" came her betrothal and marriage to one of Boston's "eligibles"—clerkman, Harvard graduate and successful business man, the "Dicky" Boardman of supreme skill as shipper.

THE BOARDMAN WINTHROP match that were soon married, however, via the courts, and as Mrs. Muriel Boardman she resumed her exalted Gotham position, a charming young matron vouching of summers between Westbury and Newport.

MISS CONNELL VANDERT BLITZ, lovely and much photographed daughter of the W. K. Vandervort, sister of Mrs. Frederic Cameron Church, Jr., and fiancée of Earl Smith, is a delightful addition to Boston's set, will soon be to dance and will do so tonight at the Tuxedo Club function.

SHE IS HOUSE GUEST of the Churches at their picturesque home in Chestnut street, and honor guest for tonight's dinner given by Mrs. Church.

MARRIAGE plans as formulated and announced by Mrs. Vandervort, call for a home reception at the 27th Avenue mansion of Mrs. "Willie K." (as her associates know her) with a priest, member of the Roman Catholic clergy of Manhattan trying the nuptial knot in accordance with the religious faith of the bride-elect.

FOR THE USELESS CLOTHES dance the clowns are gathering. The Laurence Van Ingen from Gotham, Mrs. James Cummings Farr with a party from the Big City, Mrs. W. Deering Howe this house and club, and Miss Ruth Baylies, Miss Edith Woodard, also of Metropolitan extraction, are guests.

SPEAKING LOCALLY, Miss Theresa Higginson, the John L.

Edwards, the Harrie Livermore, the Arthur Johnson, the Charles E. Jones, 3d, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Richmond, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Emerson, Mr. and Mrs. David de Mowett, Miss Edmondo Sears all rendezvous at the Brunswick.

BRIGHT PARTICULAR stars of the younger set receiving the coveted cards of invitation are Miss Jane Taylor, Miss Bertha Bragg, Miss Jean and Miss Emily Sears, the Misses Penno (Marion and Florence), Miss Cornelia Clarke and Miss Lydia Pollett (debutantes among the local Miss Theodora Ayer, Miss Penelope and Miss Margaret Curtis.

PARTY TO MARK SHATTERED ROMANCE

By C. F. BERTELLI, (Copyright, 1925, by Universal Service)

Paris, Nov. 26.—With Dudley Field Malone possibly calling details of Countess Peggy Hopkins Joyce Morier's divorce, and the Paris smart set insisting that the proceedings are already well under way, Mrs. Jean Naud is taking no chances and has immediately issued invitations for a champagne party in celebration of breaking off her engagement to Marquis de M.

It was the Marquis de M. who, on November 12, escorted Peggy to the court for the usual formality of the judicial attempt for a conjugal reconciliation. Therefore, nothing now stands in the way of Peggy's obtaining a final decree as soon as her present husband, Count Morier, consent to visit Paris or allow the French consul in New York to serve him with the summons.

Jean Naud's party, at which Henri Loeillet, a former fiancé of Peggy Joyce before she was Countess Morier, will be a conspicuous guest, will be an amazingly novel society feature. My Competitor Failed

Three months ago the public of Boston was startled with an immense clothing failure. A big clothing house, who had their merchandise cut, made and trimmed for them, failed and carried the contractor who did the manufacturing down with them. I shall not mention any names. The failure is of two percent due to be mistaken.

After the bankruptcy proceedings I buy seventy-five pieces of Overcoats. In the lot are many pieces of Strong-Hewat virgin wool coatings, the finer grades of American Woolen Co., beautiful shades of Metcalf Bros. Wanskuk Coatings and some wonderful Belgium Overcoatings. Knowing the quality of merchandise and the concern that failed three or four months ago, I know that these goods were bought to manufacture into overcoats to sell around $60 to $65.

The season is on the wane. I had woollens enough at this time, but I bought these goods, have cut, made and trimmed them in my own shops, and I offer you a range of styles never before equalled at such a figure.

Single Breasted Fly Front Overcoats, Double Breasted Wedge Models, Loose Great Coats and Ulsters. I show in my windows as fine a range as a clothier ever offered at one price.

OPEN GAME BY HARVARD; SEEKS FIRST SCORE

PLANS TO RUSH ELI OFF THE GRIDIRON

By NICK FLATLEY

HARVARD will spring an entirely new football scheme against Yale at the Stadium tomorrow. Harvard will go out to try to rush the Bulldog off the gridiron.

Harvard will depart from the hallowed system of punting, and holding back the Blue and waiting for the breaks.

Harvard has been taking a pass from the Princeton football book. The Tigers threw apparent discretion to the winds, and took chances. They didn't let the powerful Yale team get the ball, unless they had to surrender. Their smartness won that game for them.

As Harvard has pointed out, Yale gives up making opponents run, could lead themselves or anybody else. It has tremendous power. The only way to cope with that power is to outmaneuver it.

Quick punting, dash on and for down, have been the subject of much passing here in the stadium. This isn't effort, but Harvard will try the new and open game at the stadium tomorrow.

Coach Fisher and his staff know that the first points will be the big edge in this contest. Yale, after that year doesn't figure to have the edge in this contest. Yale, after that year doesn't figure to have the edge in this contest. Yale, after that year doesn't figure to have the edge in this contest.

A LOT TO WIN

Harvard with the hope of desperation, has a lot to win everything in fact.

So Harvard will try to get the ball, from the very start. The Crimson will have a new offense, something entirely out of the old that is expected, effectively on several occasions in the previous game.

But get a chance and wide and the new unit from it against the team. There will be more deception attempted tomorrow.

The Pro, Iowa evasion was the first time that the backs managed to get any coordination in their shift. They had been drilled just for that.

There have been headed a lot of in the past few days. They might have decided to give the new unit had the inexperience been met.

Your correspondent can recall four occasions when Stafford would

DARIELA OF NERVE

Stafford has football instinct, and nerves of steel. He's exactly the type for a dashing offensive, such as has been planned.

Stafford, who has been held back all Fall, is the same kind of a quarter.

Joe's trick knee kept him out of it for the past two years. But an operation last Winter anchored a leading leg.

He hasn't been hurt at all in practice this Fall. His prop can stand up a full game, and it will be no surprise to see him in there.

Harvard has backed it up with Miller, Zerkow, Niswonger, Coach and Fisher. She has a great line.

If the combination can together the new scheme of things inside, there will be a real game at the stadium.

Yale has the power, but Yale isn't a smart team. A slight burst of inspiration in the Crimson ranks can cause a lot of consternation among the boys who are giving it to Yale this time November day.

Vitale and Barry in Salem Bout

Matchmaker Jimmy Meda of the Salem A. A. has arranged a high class show for tonight at the North Street A. A. Gym. A Yale of Salem, and Lee House of Truro. There is a lot of excitement about the event.

It is a fight that will be part of the instruction, even if the leader does the quarter and himself.

If the winner is pleased to read, he will see a game. This must be the way of it. The new unit has improved, but a final verdict will not be given out by Dr. Richards until tomorrow.

Jack will be in there during the

DR. REED'S SECRETS OF HEALTH

By Charles A. Reed, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association.

It is strange how prone we are to work hard and continuously all winter as if to establish a record for our one conventional long vacation in the summer.

We generally succeed, sometimes all too well. The fatigue from such a winter's "campaign" ordinarily makes a change and the rest that can come only from change is the only means of overcoming it.

Why not indulge in a little change, in little vacation, now and then by way of prevention.

Dr. Martin M. Edwards, of Boston, says that people should learn to take little "vacations" right along with their work, and not to be wholly dependent on a short period in summer.

Take a lot of little naps during the winter and you will have less need for a big one in summer.

FOXY GRANDPA'S BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

"WHAT a lovely marcel you have! I heard one girl exclaim admiringly to another at a matinee the other day.

"My hair isn't marcelled," replied her companion. "I have a finger wave."

"A finger wave?" echoed the first girl. "Whatever do you mean? The effect is that of a loose, lovely marcel."

Then the lady of the "finger wave" proceeded to explain the mystery of her beautiful coiffure. "I was rather glad that I was so near that I couldn't but overhear."

"I got my finger-wave at a beauty parlor," she explained. "That after this I'm going to try to do my own."

SMART SAYINGS OF CLEVER CHILDREN

A little bit of four years, while out walking with her mother, saw three chairs in front of a furniture store, she turned and said:

"Mamma, are those the three chairs that they sing about in the 'Red, White and Blue'?"

JOHN J. DONOVAN, 200, 204 No. Harvard St., Allston

"The finger wave is the very latest thing in Paris and New York," she continued. "It's much better for the hair than a marcel, and especially for hair with a slight natural wave of its own."

"When next you shampoo your hair, dry and brush it then pour the spray over it, dampening it evenly. Proceed to place waves just where you want them by squeezing your hair into a wave between the first and second fingers of your right hand, while with your left hand you pin it in place with the thumb nail. Continue until you have just as many waves as you like in your wet hair, each one evenly fastened with hairpins."

"Next, place an open-mouthed comb or very coarse net over your hair to hold it firmly while it dries. Sit in the sun, if you can, until your hair is perfectly dry. Then cautiously pull out the pins, so as not to disturb your wave. Finally remove your net, and you'll be delighted with the effect, which will be that of a loose marcel."

"Don't comb out the wave the first day, and don't brush your hair for two days. After that it will be firmly set until it's time for another shampoo."

"Oh, yes, you wouldn't give your hair a finger-wave if it were absolutely straight, would you?" her companion asked.

"The girl who waved my hair told me the hair trained straight hair into lovely finger-waves," she said.

"But I have my doubts as to whether amateur efforts would be successful with very, very straight hair."

"I'm going to try a finger wave to-night when I wash my hair," exclaimed the second pretty girl, enthusiastically. "I have a suggestion of a natural wave and I've always thought it wicked to kill it with a marcel."

I am repeating this conversation just as I heard it, dear readers, in the hope that the finger-wave may prove a valuable aid to you in training your hair when it is bobbed or long. Into the very latest most becoming wave of beauty.

Certainly the young girl who so enthusiastically advocated this new method of hairdressing was an excellent advertisement for its results, as her hair gleamed in charmingly soft undulating waves.

Want to Be Someone Else—

At Least That Happens, When We Become "Great"

This is the powerful Mussolini of Italy, "made up" to look like Julius Caesar.

Three things are important in every human being, three mantras that are wound up and keep us and the human race going.

First, there is the instinct of self-preservation. That made us stay here in the old cave days, when life was even worse than it is now.

Second, there is the instinct of reproduction, or the family instinct, that causes men and women to marry and provide children for the next generation.

And third, there is AMBITION, that makes men want to be distinguished, DIFFERENT from others, IMPORTANT.

Mussolini, powerful Italian, was ambitious. First, he was an ardent radical Socialist, determined to tear down authority and build up the plain people. Later, fighting in the war, he decided that Italy really needed more powerful government, able to hold the plain people in order, make them work and attend to business.

So, by strength of will, he became ruler of Italy. And a good thing it was for Italy, probably, since after the war it was a choice between Mussolini and chaos. Mussolini has been a builder. Communism unquestionably would have been in Italy, as in Russia, a destroying force.

This picture shows Mussolini as he appears in a recent biography written by Margherita Sarfatti. Whether Mussolini likes it or wanted it published we don't know. But this is certain—MANY great men want to be like somebody else. Caesar wanted to be like Alexander the Great. Alexander the Great traveled way off into the desert to visit a soothsayer, who told him a god was his father. He wanted to be like Hercules, who had great power. He wanted to be like ROYAL, but DIVINE blood in his veins. He also looked up to Achilles, great fighting hero of Homer, owner of the well-known tendon, and is said to have run around Achilles' tomb, stark naked—the correct thing at that time.

Napoleon wanted to be like Caesar. Many grocers and drygoods men, and not a few newspaper men of this day, would like to be like Napoleon, and actually imagine that they ARE like him. So it's all right for Mussolini to want to be like Caesar, if that's his idea. He certainly has a powerful jaw, a strong face, and he isn't afraid.

Pitying the 'Poor Criminal'

What About Pitying the Outraged and Blackjacked PUBLIC?

Five young men of Atlantic City were convicted of an outrageous attack on an eighteen-year-old girl. The crime was as bad as murder. But the five young gentlemen are out on small bail, and a "sympathetic judge" has given them a new trial.

There may be technicalities in the law that makes such a new trial necessary. If so, they are very poor technicalities for the public.

There is too much tendency to lean backward where the "poor CRIMINAL" is concerned, and pay little or no attention where the poor PUBLIC is concerned.

In England, when men commit murders and are sentenced to be hanged, THEY ARE HANGED, without loss of time. Here they write their experiences, have their pictures in the papers for a few years, a few of them hang, a majority go free.

Who is responsible? THE JUDGES, JURIES AND PUBLIC OPINION.

Often suspended sentences are given, and there are allowances for good behavior that make a joke of what seems at first sight a real sentence.

Judges are invited to consider the "poor public," black-jacked, bootlegged, swindled, robbed, held up and knocked down.

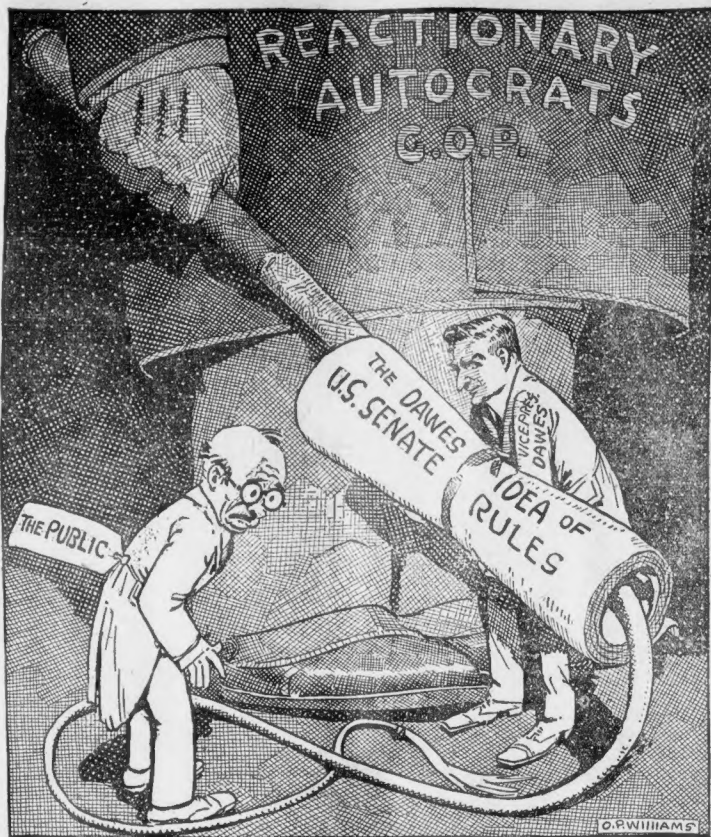

The courts, after all, are established, PARTLY AT EAST, for the benefit of the public.

It is about time to pay some attention to the public, and especially in such a case as the one mentioned.

Any leniency not absolutely demanded by the law is an outrage on decency, on the public, and on public opinion. The fact that these five young criminals accused of the most outrageous of crimes are all the sons of prosperous individuals makes it all the worse.

Buyer, Beware!

LOOK up, little man! People will try to sell you queer political games as well as queer securities. That's because you are rich and amiable and can stand an awful lot. But you are shrewd, too. A lot of people forget that. If you take a look at both ends of the new rules Vice-President Dawes is trying to sell you for the Senate you won't buy.

From one end of the rules a stout handle leads to the stout and ruthless hand of the old reactionaries who would make this country an aristocracy of power. The other end leads to a vicious lash. That lash can curl around your legs. And when it curls it stings. Don't buy!

Well, any woman could have told that without dropping a stitch or missing a beat in the salad-dressing.

VANITY OFTEN SPOILS BENEVOLENCE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

MOST of us have a small desire to do good, but it is often spoiled by an effusion of vanity.

At a La Follette meeting in the city of New York there was much cheering. A speaker demanded that the people remain quiet and let him state his case. They yelled out their approval of this and their yells consumed about five minutes of his precious time. They were willing to do what he wanted, but they desired to do it in their own way.

A husband thinks he is good to his wife because he does so much for her. But he insists upon doing it in his own way, when a little consideration on his part and willingness to help her in the way that she chooses might improve things a lot.

Many a wife is the victim at the same time of a husband's generosity and his vanity.

Few of us are able to do benevolent things benevolently. Many a member of the Ladies' Auxiliary Society is anxious to be efficient in good works, but insists upon having her own way in everything. As long as she is coddled and her wishes acceded to she continues active. When she is desired to do something in somebody's else's way she refuses and sulks.

Much giving to charity is accomplished by impossible restrictions.

A gift of some three million dollars' worth of art treasures recently to the New York Museum of Art had to be refused because of the restrictions that went with it.

We often desire to be good to the poor, but as someone has said, the only thing that the poor demand of the rich is that they "get off their backs."

A man volunteered recently to send his dead friend's son through college, but instead of giving him the money to spend on any college he pleased, he insisted upon being asked for every dollar he wanted. He willing to be generous, but it must be in his own way. His vanity spoils his benevolence.

WORLD CONTAINED IN THE ATOM

By Garrett P. Servis
Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

SCIENCE speaks very confidently of the state of things inside the atoms, and graphic representations are offered of the spinning "electrons" consisting of electronic "planes" and protons "suns" that form the basis of what we call matter.

But these pictures are only reactions of the imagination trying to interpret mathematics, and it is somewhat disconcerting to observe that changes that are made in these as new data are introduced into the calculations.

The jumping from one orbit to another, ascribed to the electrons, would be a catastrophe of the first magnitude in the solar system. Occurring inside an atom it is supposed only to give birth to radiant energy or light.

Often Falls
Ah, if we could but see such things! Man has a touching curiosity in his eyes, and when he knows that it often falls him and even deceives him. But the eyes is not made for such work.

It can be the planets in a revolving orbit around the sun but it cannot see even the outside of an atom. When the atom is so small, the most powerful microscope cannot see it. It cannot do that. How, then, could it hope to see, inside the atom, the almost infinitesimal electronic particles that are so large in comparison with the planets as the planets are in comparison with the vast extent of the solar system?

But, what a sight it would be! The electrons spinning, in a series of concentric orbits around their central sun, and making "a thousand million revolutions in one millionth of a second!" What a sight, to behold one of those voracious particles suddenly jump from its orbit and fall into another, as a circus rider leaps from the back of his flying horse to that of his neighbor and, in the twinkling of an eye, is engulfed in the flaming heat of the next orbit.

Then to follow the pulse of the atom as it speeds away from the flaming bosom of some star, to cross the wastes of space and fall, through the

No Radiation
While the electrons plodding pursue their orbits, without any impulses tending to displace them, they emit no radiation, but it is induced by another orbit an electron during the abrupt, gives out energy. But as it falls into regular revolution in the new orbit, it becomes quiet again and ceases to radiate.

All this is a very imperfect representation of some of the results of existing theories and studies about the inside constitution and conduct of atoms.

It can, at best, inspire, a curious reader to study the subject for himself by studying in his mind a desire to know to what point science has attained on this wonderful road, and to ponder what new outlook it is pushing.

For it is not denied that many scientific ideas will probably have to be changed, although the central fact of the divinity of the atom and of its possession of enormous internal energy are sure and permanent additions to human knowledge.

BECAUSE YOU HAVE BAD LUCK DON'T LOSE HOPE

You look over your life and you can see that you have had many opportunities to advance beyond the position you occupy.

Probably you are saying to yourself: "There is now no use in trying to lift yourself up, for about all there is for you now is to keep plugging on and trust to luck that you will come out right."

Here is your fighting spirit! Are you going to fold your hands and allow yourself to go backward and fight, man! Or have you reached a point where you consider any success you might make as not worth the effort?

As long as you are young and you are not physically incapacitated you have a good fighting chance.

You have had a lot of bad breaks and perhaps you have grown pessimistic about your luck—perhaps you think it would be foolish for you to try to get a financial start—because something would sure happen to you if it did.

In the past you have always lost your next step, but the experience should be valuable in teaching you how to keep on.

You become resigned to a life of failure and you are not physically incapacitated you have a good fighting chance.

You have as good a chance to win as anybody else.
